Grants and Funding guide

Children with rare chromosome and gene disorders often have additional needs and require specialist items of equipment or services, to help them live more fulfilling lives and to make life that little bit easier for those caring for them. The specialist nature of these items means that they can sometimes be very expensive and outside of the budgets of many families caring for a disabled child. Costs are often not borne by one of the statutory services meaning that families have little choice but to raise the funds themselves to pay for the equipment they need.

Parents of Unique children often approach the team at Unique to ask for information and guidance on how they might raise the funds they need. Having talked to lots of different parents and carers about what they need, we have decided to write this guide to show the types of funding that are available and to signpost carers to potential sources of grants and other funding. It is intended as a resource to help locate possible funders, something which can be very time-consuming and hard work, particularly when you are caring for a child with disabilities and their siblings. We have included the details of some of the grant providers/funders in the UK, who offer assistance to families caring for disabled children. You will need to read the guidelines for each organisation carefully before making an application, as they will often have different eligibility criteria (some, for example will undertake means testing). Often funders are registered charities and receive lots of different applications, so they may well have quite long waiting lists. You could wait some time for a decision about funding of an item, so if it is urgent.... speak to them!

This guide is a dynamic resource and the details included are correct at the time of publication. However, if you should find any new sources of funding that we haven't included, please contact

Unique to tell us about them. We are always pleased to receive new information that we can pass on to carers of children with rare chromosome or gene disorders.

Grants for Adults

Many of the organisations we have listed in this guide focus on funding items for children and in some cases young adults, but there are others who work with adults in need, not as many, but there are some. You might also consider approaching your local Rotary, Lions Club or Round Table, as they support people locally (telephone numbers should be in your local telephone directory or online), or contact your local library for information. To search for grants for adults (or children) in your local area, please visit:

When You Wish Upon A Star aim to grant the wishes of children between 2-16 living with a terminal illness who have not previously had a wish granted by another charity.

Where to Begin

It's time to do some research!

Once you have identified a need for a piece of specialist equipment or a service that you believe will help your child, you will need to compile a list of potential funders. Be careful to only include those organisations you are eligible to apply to, as otherwise you'll just be wasting your time and theirs on an application that probably won't be successful. Remember that many funders are oversubscribed – they receive more requests for help than they can fulfil – so you need to make sure you only apply to those organisations likely to support you.

This guide is a starting point and includes details of various funders you might want to consider applying to but it isn't an exhaustive list. If you have internet access, begin with a thorough search, using terms like 'grants for disabled children' and you will be able to find a variety of different funding organisations. You can also contact your local council, Citizen's Advice Bureau and charities like Carers UK, Contact and Unique. It's amazing the amount of information you can access through simple searches on Google, Bing and other search engines. Other parents and carers are always a good source of information too, so consider joining one of our Unique Facebook groups to connect with others and ask about grants that they may have received. We often find they are a mine of information.... you just have to ask!

It's also worth visiting your local library reference section. Here you might find a good source of information in a book called 'A Guide to Grants for Individuals in Need' (2022/23 edition) by Jessica Threlfall from the Directory of Social Change (ISBN: 9781784820824). It contains addresses of UK National and local charities that are able to fund different items, such as buggies, electric wheelchairs, tricycles, computers as well as day-to-day items of equipment. Usually you won't be able to take the book away from the library, but if you take a pen and notepad, you can ask the library where to find the book and sit and write down useful addresses that you can contact for help.

You can get a brief overview of what it contains by visiting their website: <https://www.dsc.org.uk/publication/grants-individuals-need-2022-23/>

■ Disability grants

website: <https://www.disability-grants.org/>

Writing about your child's rare chromosome disorder

When you have found a potential source of funding for a specialist item (referred to here as a 'funder'), you will usually need to fill out an application form, usually online. This will involve writing in detail about your child's rare chromosome or gene disorder and the different ways it affects their daily life and yours. Remember, lots of people won't ever have heard about rare chromosome or gene disorders and it is possible that your child's diagnosis will be a series of letters and numbers. This is why you need to explain carefully the different ways in which it affects your child and you as their carer. Just writing 'chromosome disorder', 'deletion' or 'duplication' for example probably won't mean very much to someone who is reading your application form, with little or no medical or genetics knowledge.

Completing an application form like this can sometimes be quite difficult because it can mean writing about all the things your child can't do, when your instinct as a parent/carer is to celebrate what they can do! Keep in mind though that you need to try to paint a picture of your child's life so that the funder can really understand how difficult it can sometimes be to do things most people take for granted. Explain how the equipment you are requesting will help them or you, how their funding would make a real difference to your lives. What will you or they be able to do that can't be done now? They will have many applications to read so it is important to include lots of details to help them visualise and understand the challenges your child (and you as their carer) face. It is advisable to gather as much information as you can about your child's medical, behavioural and other relevant issues. Check the Unique website to see if we have an information guide to your child's condition and go through your past medical reports, school reports and your child's Education and Health Care Plan (EHP) if they have one. Some funders will ask for additional information such as this, so it's good to have it to hand before you start. If you don't have it, talk to your child's school, your GP and/or Community Paediatrician and see if anyone is able to write a supporting statement that can help to add weight to your application. Always read each funder's guidelines through as they sometimes stipulate exactly what they do and don't want to receive from you.

Small items can make a big difference!

■ Rays of Sunshine

Website: <https://raysofsunshine.org.uk/>

Telephone: 0208 782 1171

Email: info@raysofsunshine.org.uk

Rays of Sunshine is a national charity that brightens the lives of seriously ill young people and their families by granting wishes and providing ongoing support in hospital and within the community. The charity grants wishes to children aged 3-18 years living with serious or life-threatening conditions. There is a medical criteria divided into four categories. Different types of wishes such as special holidays to Lapland or Disneyland, a UK holiday or a special day out are offered for each medical category.

Wish Granters

The next group of potential funders are charities who exist to 'grant the wishes' of children (and often adults) who are terminally or seriously ill, disabled or life-limited. These can often be for things like holidays of a lifetime (for example to Disneyland, Florida) or meeting a pop star which ordinarily would be beyond the wildest dreams of the children. These charities also often have strict eligibility criteria, which you will need to read before considering whether to make an application. Once again, this is not intended to be an exhaustive list, just a starting point to give you some ideas for where to look for funding of this type.

■ Children's Wish Foundation International

Website: <https://childrenswish.org/>

UK Office 0186 548 7373

USA office: 770-393-9474

Email: info@childrenswish.org

■ Dreams Come True

Website:

<https://www.dreamscometrue.uk.com/>

Telephone: 01428 762330

Email: info@dreamscometrue.uk.com

They only accept referrals from professionals known to the child, including medical, healthcare, educational, or social care professionals. You can apply online or download an application form from their website.

Please note: Due to the continuing demand for long haul holidays, including Florida, the waiting time to start work on holiday dreams outside of Europe is currently over a year. It would be a minimum of 6 months after that before you could travel at the earliest, so please bear that in mind if requesting this type of dream.

In this guide we have responded to feedback from our members who tell us that specialist equipment is often very expensive (beyond their means) and that searching for information about potential sources of funding takes lots of time - time that is very precious when you are caring for a disabled person. It is always worth remembering that although your request for funding might be unsuccessful at first, all these organisations exist to give away money. That's their reason for being - they want to help disabled children, adults and their carers to live more fulfilling lives.

Sources of Funding

Statutory Funding

Before looking for a charity or other funding organisation to possibly fund the item your child needs, it is worth double checking to make sure there are no statutory (government) sources available. Talk to your social worker if you have one, or contact your local Social Services/Disabled Children's Team or local council. The Citizen's Advice Bureau may also be able to help.

Sources of funding include Disabled Facilities Grants which could pay to make changes to your home, such as the bathroom, widening of doors and adapted lighting or heating controls. These are means tested for disabled adults, but not families with a disabled child.

A Disabled Facilities Grant won't affect any benefits you get.

How much you get depends on your:

- Household income
- Household savings over £6,000

Country

- England Up to £30,000
- Wales Up to £36,000
- Northern Ireland Up to £25,000
- Scotland Disabled Facilities Grants are not available

find out about support for equipment and adaptations at website: <https://www.gov.scot/policies/independent-living/housing-adaptations/>

Depending on your income, you may need to pay towards the cost of the work to the property. Disabled children under 18 can get a grant without their parents' income being taken into account.

Contact your local council for more information. You might not get a grant if you start work on your property before the council approves your application.

Charities & Other Funding Organisations

Here are some of the many different organisations offering grants to carers of disabled children. Again, it's important to realise that this is not a list of all funders, it is just intended to help you to make a start. Read their criteria carefully, talk to them (if they welcome calls) and only apply to those who you know you are eligible for. The organisations listed are in alphabetical non-specific order. Inclusion in this guide does not mean we are endorsing them.

is working with Family Fund to provide further grant funding for families caring for children and young adults with multiple complex significant learning and physical support needs living in Liverpool, Wirral, and the Midlands up to the age of 21.

“ I applied to Family Fund for a grant for A's tricycle, a lovely gentleman came to interview us and asked why we wanted the fund, I explained A. couldn't ride a standard pedal cycle due to his mobility/balance problems. We wanted A. to have the freedom to be able to ride a tricycle after seeing them at a recent ability day provided by the local council, the local inclusive sports guy had arranged for a company who provide cycles for children and adults with disabilities to participate, when I contact them they were quoting in excess of £600, so this is why I initially contacted Family Fund. After the interview Family fund awarded us £350 so I did a little digging and found Jorvik cycle's in York who quoted us £350 so we wouldn't need to put anything towards it. Family Fund also sent A's brother, as a gesture, a voucher of £50 towards something he may like (they called it siblings matter too), how amazing was that? ”

“ I am so grateful that we were able to get funding from the Family Fund. It allowed us to have our first family holiday following diagnosis, and we also got help with funding for bedding and a washing machine and tumble dryer, they were a Godsend to us in those early days of diagnosis.”
